Executive Summary

With the expertise gained from The Nature Conservancy's (TNC) successful oyster recycling and reef restoration projects around the world, TNC Hong Kong has been working extensively to bring back once-abundant shellfish reefs to the town and the Greater Bay Area. Our strategy in Hong Kong is to provide a practical solution for both the food and beverage (F&B) and local oyster aquaculture industries to reduce waste by recycling discarded shells while saving the nature shellfish reefs. This approach also addresses the adverse environmental effects of discarded shells left on the shoreline and diverts food waste that would go to landfills. The shells collected are then repurposed to become the ideal substrates for shellfish larvae, and then potential growth into shellfish and then become reefs, which bring a wide range of benefits, including increase the nearby marine biodiversity and fish population, improve local water quality and create more stable shorelines.

In continuation of the denitrification research at Yung Shue O back in May 2023, TNC has launched another round of investigation in August 2023. Results showing the immense potential of large-scale oyster reef restoration in making a significant positive impact on local water quality and overall ocean health.

Apart from that, the project also engages the Hong Kong public with the shell recycling process, shares conservation and restoration messages, as well as creates opportunities for hands-on volunteer engagement. In this phase 3, over 320 volunteers were engaged in Pak Nai in aquaculture debris and shell bagging activities.

In the project phase 1 and 2, TNC has successfully demonstrated that the great potential of shellfish reefs restoration in different parts of Hong Kong waters. In phase 3, our goal is to restore these habitats at larger scale, which means higher volume of recycled shells would be available to repurpose into substrates. 41.9 tons of discarded shells were collected from 15 F&B industry partners and 5 oyster farmers in phase 3, which is about 30% higher than the shell we collected phase 1 and 2 (31.8 ton annually in average). Hence, this project phase played an important role in scaling up of reef restoration efforts and create an effective model for future restoration projects.

In July 2024, with the continue support from MEEF, TNC will start the phase 4 of this project, TNC will deploy new reefs on the seawall of the third runway of the Hong Kong International Airport, approximately 4000m² shellfish reef will be restored. TNC will continue to scale up the programme to support the growing restoration and ecological enhancement initiatives across Hong Kong. We will also collaborate with The University of Hong Kong (HKU-SWIMS) to develop and pioneer a new method for oyster reef restoration, and strengthen our existing relationships with the oyster farming communities in shell collection.

Project description:

As Hong Kong's first shell recycling program, TNC "Save Our Shells" initiative has an important role to play in bringing back Hong Kong's lost shellfish reefs by creating a pipeline of shell waste to be repurposed into new reef substrate. TNC aims to recycle discarded shellfish shells from the local aquaculture and food industry — shells that are typically destined for landfill or discarded like trash along the shoreline— and repurpose them into the substrate for new, living reefs in Hong Kong waters. These reefs will provide a boon of benefits, serving as a habitat for juvenile fish and other marine life and as natural filter feeders that improve local water quality and stabilise shorelines. We will also increase public awareness of the importance of shellfish reefs and estuarine ecology by engaging volunteers and organising activities to help collect and prepare shells for reef deployment.

Evaluation of project effectiveness in achieving the proposed objectives:

1. Collection and use of shells

- a. During the project, we have established partnerships with 15 partners. Between 1st July 2023 to 30th June 2024, we collected 41.9 tons of shells. Summary of the collection operations for each partner can be found in Appendix 1.
- b. Another 93.3kg of shells were collected from clean up events in Pak Nai. This help to continue to improve the ecologically important mudflat in Pak Nai that serve as nursery grounds for endangered horseshoe crab species and large pieces of Halophila becarri seagrass beds.
- c. 679.7kg of shells were collected from oyster farmers in Lau Fau Shan, involving five oyster farmers and local community members from Deep Bay
- d. TNC continues to explore new partnerships with the stakeholders to increase the amount of shell collected and project coverage.
- e. Within the 15 restaurants that TNC partnered with during the project period, three of them is newly formed partnership, i.e. The Hong Kong Jockey Club Happy Valley Racecourse, Grand Hyatt and JW Marriot, collection begins on 7th December 2023, 24th January 2024 and 25th April 2024 respectively.
- f. We have tried to explore another collaboration with The Mira Hong Kong. A few rounds of discussion and a trial collection were conducted on 7th December 2023, however, their housekeeping team has declined for long-term collaboration because of hygiene standard operation. We have planned to reach out to them after the Hong Kong government launched the municipal solid waste charging scheme, which was expected provide a bigger incentive to join the recycling program. However, with the withdrawal of the charging scheme, the incentives for restaurants in joining the scheme has been reduced.
- g. Despite the lower incentive for restaurants to join in the scheme, we have established two paying-partnership with Grand Hyatt and JW Marriot, which they would provide financial support specifically aimed at covering the logistics cost of shell recycling. In the coming year, we would continue to explore opportunities in receiving financial support from shell recycling partners to expand the program's reach and impact.
- h. In collaboration with Faculty of Social Science of the University of Hong Kong, three master students in the Sustainability Leadership and Governance program were recruited and helped with development of a pitching plan to hotels and restaurants on shell recycling programme. The plan included market research and studies on Municipal Solid Waste Charging, aimed at providing more incentives to hotels and restaurants to cover a bigger portion of the logistics cost. Despite the withdrawal of the charging scheme, they have also changed focus to develop marketing ideas and info-packs for the project.

- i. New stakeholder engagement has been established with the oyster farmers from Ha Tsuen Yau Kung Tong. A meeting was held with Chairman of Ha Tsuen Rural Committee, oyster farmers of Ha Tsuen Yau Kung Tong and village representative of Ha Pak Nai. TNC introduced the program objectives and operation, and the oyster farmers expressed interests in collaboration of shell recycling after Lunar New Year holiday.
- j. TNC also supported the needs from other green groups and academics on oyster shells, to enhance the public awareness on oyster reef ecosystem and improve Hong Kong marine biodiversity. Under this initiative, we supported:
 - i. “Site Trial for Water Quality Enhancement by Bivalve Restoration at Wan Chai Basin”, “Site Trials of Eco-shoreline in West Kowloon Cultural District and New Yau Ma Tei Typhoon Shelter” and “Advisory Services for Site Trial and Monitoring of Floating Artificial Reefs in Siu Ho Wan and Tung Chung East” of City University of Hong Kong. We provide recycled shells to them on 26th October, 20th November, 6th December 2023, 12th June 2024. They will hang out the shells in strings at their project sites. A total of 3,792kg of recycled shells was provided.
 - ii. Grand aquarium of Ocean Park. They deployed oyster shell strings in a tank in their Grand Aquarium. A total of 400kg of shells were given them.

2. Scientific research and monitoring of oyster reefs

- a. On 21st August 2023, TNC Global Marine Science Team, University of Maryland Prof Jeff Cornwell, local researchers from HKU SWIMS lab have visited the Yung Shue O restored reef, which was built in 2022 and 2023, using the oyster shell collected from previous phases of MEEF projects. During their visit, they have taken some sediments sample and oyster sample for denitrification sampling and monitoring. The results were shared at the 10th International Conferences on Marine Pollution and Ecotoxicology.
- b. An intriguing discovery has been made from this denitrification study. Our research revealed that mixed-species oyster habitats displayed an impressive N-N₂ flux of approximately 1500 mmol m⁻² hr⁻¹, in which this rate was more than five times higher than that observed in bare soft-sediment areas. Remarkably, these denitrification rates are comparable to well-studied regions worldwide, such as Chesapeake Bay in the USA. Despite the near functional extinction of oyster reefs in Hong Kong, our findings shed light on the immense potential of large-scale oyster reef restoration. By restoring these reefs, we can make a significant positive impact on local water quality and overall ocean health.
- c. On 22nd August, 15th September, 20th September, 22nd September, 4th October, 16th October, 8th November, 11th November, TNC had conducted 8 days of dive site-scoping in collaboration with the Explorers Club Hong Kong Chapter and the Swire Institute of Marine Science of The University of Hong Kong (SWIMS), covering underwater habitats near Cha Kwo Chau, Chen Kok, Cheung Chau, Disneyland, Fan Lau, Peng Chau, Shek Pik and Sunshine Island, to collect baseline data for designing future reef deployment. Oyster samples and images of quadrats (0.25m x 0.25m) along the transects were collected and photo captured for future analysis.
- d. At most dive locations, we confirmed the presence of some semblance of reefs, which validated the potential for their recovery and supported our team’s hypothesis. Furthermore, our findings revealed a diverse range of shellfish species. These specimens were sent to the laboratory for DNA barcoding, allowing us to identify the specific species. This discovery is particularly significant as it highlights the untapped potential of these waters and represents a breakthrough for our entire team.

- e. In the summer of 2024, TNC will deploy approximately 4000m² shellfish reef on the 3rd Runway Seawall of the Hong Kong International Airport. From our initial estimation, the artificial reef will use 50m³ of shells for its outer layer.
 - f. Because of the deployment, more volunteers will be engaged to help on collecting the shells from Pak Nai's mudflats and bagging of shells from April to August 2024.
3. Outreach and marketing
- a. During the project, four sessions of aquaculture debris clean up events were organised, including a shell upcycling event in Pak Nai for 22 special education needs youths. They will participate in debris clean up and shell art. 148 participants were reached and 29 baskets of aquaculture debris were removed from the mudflats of Pak Nai. Two sessions of reef ball building workshops were organized as well with a total of 45 participants joined. Participants were paired up to produce reef ball units, which will be used for reef deployment in 2024 summer.
 - b. On 28th October 2023, TNC were invited by the Hong Kong Maritime Museum to hold a shell painting booth on their Family Fun Day, which was a free-of-charge public education event. 1601 public visitors have visited and joined the shell painting activities and learnt the alternative use of shells and the importance of oyster reef restoration.
 - c. We had organized a clean-up event with Lei Yue Mun Community - Christian Family Service Centre on 13th November 2023 at Lai Yue Mun beach, where shells were densely found on the shore. 18 people participate and 93.3kg (5 baskets) of shells were collected.
 - d. Past successful stories of previous phase of the shell recycling project were now showcasing to public through panels and videos at the exhibition in Hong Kong Maritime Museum "The Oyster Odyssey: Restoring Hong Kong's Lost Treasure", from November 2023 to August 2024. Talks and workshops has been arranged in relation to the exhibition, including an interactive sharing session from oyster farmers "Oyster Memoirs", engaging 2 oyster farmers and 20 participants from public recruitment.
 - e. 8 shell sorting and bagging activities has been held during the project period to prepare shells for reef deployment at the seawall of the Hong Kong International Airport. 177 participants were engaged to produce 212 bags of shells. During the volunteer activity, volunteers will also learn about oyster reef ecosystems and their conservation status during the activities. Approximately 2000 bags of shells are needed for the deployment project, hence more shell bagging activities will be held in the coming July and August to achieve this target.
 - f. For media interviews, please refer to appendix 3 for the news clipping record.

Summary and Way Forward

1. TNC will continue to collect shells from restaurants and oyster farmers and will continue to launch more sessions of shell bagging activities to prepare for reef deployment in August 2024.
2. TNC will continue to explore paying partnership with F&B industry.
3. TNC will develop and pioneer a new method for oyster reef restoration, remote setting of oyster larvae, in partnership with The University of Hong Kong (HKU-SWIMS) that can be applied across Hong Kong.
